

Irish History Online

Irish History Online is an authoritative guide (in progress) to what has been written about Irish history from earliest times to the present. It has been established in association with the Royal Historical Society Bibliography of British and Irish History (of which it is now the Irish component) and London's Past Online.

Since the most recent update (February 2008) IHO contains over 63,000 items, drawn mostly from Writings on Irish History, and covering publications from 1936 to 2004 (in progress). In addition, it contains all the Irish material currently held on the online Royal Historical Society Bibliography. (The latter is less comprehensive but covers a longer period of publications, up to the most recent). In summer 2008, publications for 2005 will be made available for online searching. During the current phase of funding from the Irish Research Council for the Humanities and Social Sciences (2006-9), particular attention is being paid to enhancing coverage of the Irish abroad: at the most recent update almost 500 new records on the Irish abroad were added, including many references collected in libraries in the U.S.A. and Canada.

Irish History Online includes articles from journals, both national and local history journals, and collective volumes. Searches can be made by author, by subject, by publication details, or by period covered. It is an essential resource for the study of Irish history at any level, and is free of charge to users.

Searching takes the same form as the RHS Bibliography. Users may search via 'Simple search' or 'Full search', and Help menus are the same. Thanks to the connection with the RHS Bibliography, users of Irish History Online may take advantage of links from certain records to other electronic resources, including COPAC (which indicates the location in British and Irish libraries of particular works); World Cat; the Oxford DNB (if the PC is networked to a library with a subscription to the DNB); and full text versions of some articles through EDINA's Get Copy service.

Irish History Online is funded under the Irish Research Council for the Humanities and Social Sciences Government of Ireland Project Grants scheme.
