The discovery of a young woman's body in a field is the starting point of this engrossing thriller, set in an isolated rural town in northern Spain. The director's cleverly constructed screenplay explores the consequences through six overlapping chapters in which events are observed from different perspectives. Consistently playing against genre expectations, the movie is not formed as a conventional whodunnit, being more concerned with charting the behaviour of its diverse protagonists as their fates intersect and they are faced with serious moral dilemmas. In that respect, it gains immeasurably in dramatic power by revisiting key events from different points of view.

"A thoughtful, imaginative and intricately structured drama that proves satisfyingly tantalising" Michael Dwyer, Irish Times
